PCHS marching band places 10th in state

Band experienced their best finish and highest score on the state level

By Dana Estep
Special to the Times

The Powell County Marching Pirates competed in State Marching Semi-Finals this past Saturday, Oct. 29 in Bowling Green at Greenwood High School.

The band has been working hard to achieve the honor they received Saturday. They placed 10th in the state. This is the highest placement they have ever taken with a score of 72.05.

The band has been to the state semi-finals for the past six years. Each year they have edged up against the competition. "I am so proud of these young people," stated Michael Estep, PCHS Band Director, "I can honestly say they left it on the field and I couldn't have asked for anything more. They gave it everything they had."

The bands are categorized by classes according to school size. PCHS band competes in class AA. There are 31 AA bands in the state and the PCHS Marching Pirates are now in the top 10.

Mr. Estep, Mrs. Edwards and staff would like to thank everyone who has helped and supported the band throughout the season and wish our Seniors the best of luck in the future. Seniors were honored on Tuesday night with the Final March.

The Powell County Marching Pirates competed in state semi-finals/finals this weekend in Bowling Green. Finishing 10th in the state. It was their highest finish and score yet in state semi-final competition. It was a great day for competition and the Pirates gave all they had in performance. The students worked extremely hard to make it this far and the staff and band director Michael Estep are very proud of them.

Natural Bridge along with Ale-8 to celebrate 85 years

By KAYLA MAYS
Times Reporter

Natural Bridge State Resort Park could simply be defined as natural beauty. It is a place we are each familiar with and can share many memories of. It is something we as Kentuckians and more importantly Powell Countians can be proud of.

This weekend the State Park in conjunction with Ale-8 will celebrate their 85th anniversary.

The state park was one of the first four state parks in Kentucky and was developed in 1926.

The celebration will begin at 1p.m. with historic displays of the park such as pictures, letters, and other memorabilia. Anyone who has pictures or any type of memorabilia relating to the park are welcome to bring it to help expand the historic collection.

There will also be live music at the Hemlock Lodge by The Brushfire Bluegrass Band, a historic dinner with free Ale-8 One who is also celebrating their 85th anniversary.

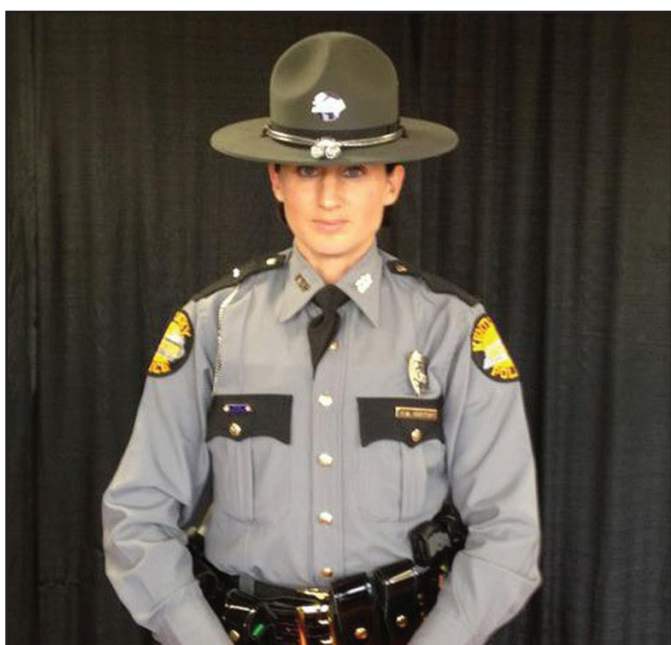

Then at 7:30 p.m., there will be an Early History Presentation by Wilson Francis who served twenty five years as park naturalist and park manager.

With fall upon us and the beauty of the wonderful outdoors at its best, celebrating one of Nature's most beautiful gifts is a wonderful way to honor Natural Bridge State Park as it celebrates 85 years.

Everyone is welcome to attend. The celebration will be held this Saturday Nov. 5.

Burton graduates from Kentucky State Police academy with distinction

Kenna Burton, recently graduated from the Kentucky State Police Academy and received an award for distinction as a class leader.

The Kentucky State Police Academy presented diplomas to 60 new troopers at ceremonies held Sunday in Frankfort. Their addition to the force brings the agency's strength to a total of 914 troopers serving the citizens of the Commonwealth.

"Kentuckians can go to bed at night feeling safe and secure because of our KSP, so it's critical that we maintain staffing levels," said Gov. Steven Beshear. "This is the fourth year in a row we've been able to put a new class of cadets out on our roads. I'm proud of that. Despite a horrible revenue situation, I've made it clear we must protect and preserve our highest priorities, and this is one of the highest."

"It's always an exciting day when we graduate new recruits," said Kentucky State Police Commissioner Rodney Brewer. "These 60 men and women have worked hard for 23 weeks to earn the rank of trooper. They epitomize our agency values of honor, professionalism and service above self. I applaud Governor Beshear's support of our agency for allowing us to continue the training process to provide the best protection for the citizens of rural Kentucky."

The new troopers started a 23-week training cycle on May 22, in a class that consisted of 81 cadets. Ten failed initial physical testing during the first two hours. Eleven more resigned during the weeks of constant mental and physical challenges that followed.

The training included more than 1,000 hours of classroom and field study in subjects such as constitutional law, juvenile and traffic law, use of force, weapons training, defensive tactics, first aid, high speed vehicle pursuit, criminal investigation, computer literacy, hostage negotiations, evidence collection, radio procedures, search and seizure, crash investigation, drug identification, traffic control, crowd control, armed robbery response, land navigation, electronic crimes, sex crimes, hate crimes, domestic violence, bomb threats and hazardous materials.

"Although our attrition rate is high for recruits, the end result is a highly skilled trooper that joins an elite group of professional men and women that rivals any other agency in America," Brewer noted.

Several members of the class earned special recognitions including Kenna Burton, of Stanton, Ky. Burton received the Ernie Bivens Award, an honor presented to the cadet who, in the opinion of the KSP Academy staff supported by input from the cadets themselves, shows distinction as a class leader, strives for academic excellence and has excelled in all phases of the academy's physical and vocational training.

Burton was assigned to Post 8 in Morehead.

Be careful with the deer during their wild season

MIKE REED
County Ag. Agent

It is the time of year that most of us realize in Powell County that the deer are going wild. This usually happens right before deer hunting season. Mating season for our local deer has begun and the number of deer-related vehicle crashes always increases this time of year. Last year there were 3118 deer related automobile crashes that were reported in Kentucky. From these accidents there actually were four deaths as a result of the crash, along with 169 injuries. Across the nation each year, over 150 people are killed as a result of a motor vehicle collision with deer. Deer cause us far more damage to vehicles and property than any other wildlife in Kentucky, this is only one reason that a controlled hunting season is important to our area and our state.

The modern gun season opens here in Zone 3 and 4 next weekend, Nov. 12-21. Deer hunting season is important to many people in the Powell County area. Not only is it important to those guys and ladies who are all dressed up for the hunt, it is important for all of us who have farms and gardens in the area. Can you believe how difficult it would be to raise a crop or garden if we DID NOT have a hunting season? Can you remember how difficult it is to grow sweet corn and sweet potatoes in any garden spot in Powell County?

All hunters need to remember that there are several rules and regulations that need to be followed for your safety and the safety of others out in the woods and fields next weekend. Make sure to read and follow all guidelines set forth in the Fall 2011 Kentucky Hunting and Trapping guide, made available from your Powell County Clerk's Office or any other business which sells hunting and fishing licenses or hunting equipment. One of the main rules of hunting anything is that you cannot hunt on someone else's land unless they say so. Be sure you have permission from the land owner of the property where you hunt. While written permission is not always necessary, sometimes a written statement with signature might be a good idea.

All Kentucky hunters must obtain and carry a hunting license and a deer permit. Paper licenses and permits must be signed and the hunter information portion, (signature, address, eye and hair color, sex, height and weight), must be filled out completely before going out into the field.

All deer hunters, unless license exempt, must buy and carry proof of purchasing a statewide deer permit while deer hunting. This permit allows a hunter to take two deer: one antlered and one antlerless, or two antlerless. It does not matter if the antlered or antlerless deer is taken first.

well. A hunter is limited to one deer with visible antlers (excluding button bucks) per license year statewide, except additional antlered deer may be taken on federal areas.

Kentucky residents who are owners of their own farm land, their spouses or dependent children are exempt from this regulation and therefore do not have to have a permit. Also tenants of such farms, their spouses or dependent children may hunt on the farms in which they work without a permit. The only other people who can hunt without a license would be a Kentucky resident on a military furlough for more than 3 days, or a resident or non-resident kid under the age of 12.

Anyone hunting where and when a gun or elk season is open MUST wear hunter orange color on the head, chest and back that is visible to others at all times. Garments can be made of mesh type material, as long as openings in the mesh weave are no wider than ¼ inch by any measurement. Garments may display a small portion of another color.

The following are examples of hunter orange violations: Wearing hunter orange clothing while walking to a stand and taking it off once you get there; Wearing camouflage patterned hunter orange garments without additional SOLID hunter orange clothing on the head, back and chest; Hunting during a muzzle-loading deer season without hunter orange clothing. Basically if you are hunting ANYTHING in a place where and when a gun of any kind can be used for taking deer, elk, or bear, you have to have hunter orange on your body to comply with the law. Too often, and seemingly every year, we read or hear on the news of a careless fatality involving one of our state's hunters. Make sure that all your guns are in working order and that you know where your buddies are at all times. Play it safe this month and be aware of all the rules and regulations regarding this deer season. For more information obtain a copy of the Kentucky Hunting and Trapping guide available at the Powell County Clerk's office and many department stores that sell hunting licenses and hunting equipment.

These two young bucks were seen grazing in the soybeans on Paint Creek road in late September.

If you happen to kill a deer and your freezer is already full, consider donating that meat to the Kentucky Hunters for the Hungry Program. In our area, the following meat processors take part in this program for a small fee. They include:

Rebel Acres Processing-Montgomery County-1-859-744-6966; Arvin's Slaughterhouse-Estill County-1-606-723-3525; Chandler's Deer Processing-Clark County-1-859-745-4065; Halsey's Meat Processing-Wolfe County-1-606-668-7313 and Center's Meat Processing in Menifee County at 1-606-768-3302. Processors are only able to accept a limited number of donated deer during this peak harvest season, so calling ahead of time is important. All processors cannot accept deer that have not been cleanly field dressed and well cared for in the process. All deer must be telechecked and tagged before donating.

Good Luck out there next weekend, and I hope someone gets the deer that ate my Mother-in-Laws sweet corn patch this summer!

Powell County Farmers Invited to the North American Livestock Expo Any interested beef cattle producer from our area may want to go along for the ride to Louisville on Tuesday, November 15, 2011 to the North American Livestock Exposition. # Pirates Pounded by Fairview, Limp into Playoffs

The Powell County Football Team had lost two games in a row and needed to gain some confidence back as they head into the State Playoffs. Last Friday, the Pirates traveled to Ashland to take on the Fairview Eagles in the final game of the regular season. Powell with some key players out due to injury would have to play well to stay with undefeated Fairview. The Eagles would get the ball first on the rainy night. The Fairview offense would run the ball down the field and into position to score. A touchdown pass for the Eagles gave them a 6 - 0 lead to begin the game. Powell would have the ball and the offense for the Pirates could go nowhere and had to punt. Both defense were aided by the wet conditions and the first quarter ended with the Pirates trailing 6 - 0. The second quarter was dominated by the defenses and the soggy field conditions. Neither team could mount a scoring threat in the quarter. The first half ended with Fairview leading still 6 - 0. At halftime the rain began to let up and the Pirates looked to finally get their offense going. But Powell must have left their offense back in Stanton. It was one fumble and a punt after another for the Pirate offense in the second half. Fairview began to pass the ball very well and piled points on the scoreboard. Powell had no answer for the Eagle offense and fell to Fairview, 34 - 0.

Powell's record now stands at 6 - 4 at the end of the regular season. Powell heads into the State Playoffs to face Lewis County this Friday in Vanceburg. The Pirates defeated Lewis County earlier in the season on the same field. Powell looks to win their first Playoff game in school history and get seven wins for the first time as well on Friday night. Game time is set for 7:30.

Student of the Week

Mackenzi Barnett is this week's PTO Student of the Week at Powell County High School. She is the daughter of Darby and Christi Billings of Stanton.

Mackenzi has been on the Pirate Softball Team and Cross Country Team for two years. Last Thursday she won this year's GPA Award in the Kentucky River Conference for cross country. She has also been a member of Future Business Leaders of America for two years.

Mackenzi, a sophomore, most enjoys being with her friends and participating in extra-curricular activities after school. Mackenzi's favorite teacher at the high school is Mrs. Gretchen Brewer, her AP English III instructor. "She makes writing fun and interesting," Mackenzi says. Mrs. Brewer nominated Mackenzi this week.

When asked what makes her unique, Mackenzi responded, "I try my best at everything I do."

Her future plans are to attend the University of Pikeville, major in biology, and then get her Master's Degree in Physical Therapy.

Student of the Week is a program sponsored by the PTO and recognizes students who are role models in the areas of study, effort, cooperation, and attitude. Other students nominated this week include Jonathan Dennis, Kara Morton, and James Strange.

Send all your school news to the Clay City Times. Deadline is 5 p.m. Monday.

My name is Nellie Anderson. I am better known as “Mrs. Nellie” a name given to me by my students I had the privilege to teach here in Powell County for 27 years.

I would like to ask you to vote for my son, James D. Anderson, Jr., for County Judge Executive on November 8, 2011 in a special election due to the untimely death of Mr. Jim Potts. My son loves this county. This is where he has lived his entire life. His home, family, church, heart and future are here in Powell County.

My son will work hard to be a Judge that you will respect. I want you the citizens and voters of this county to know that my son will do the best job that he can to make our county a place that we Powell Countians can be proud of and he will do it with honesty, fairness and integrity. He truly wants our county's citizens to have the best and he possess the capabilities to achieve what a judge needs for this to happen. James wants a county that will allow his children and your children and grandchildren to have the choice to stay here instead of leaving to have an economic future. We have a lot of positive things going on in this county that we need to focus on and keep going. We have things that we as citizens of this county would like to see happen to better our community. My son has a great desire to help Powell County be a county that we can be proud of by bringing in whatever is best for our county.

Many of you are former students of mine. I always treated my students with honesty, fairness and respect. I can assure you that my son will do the same for the citizens of the county.

When you go to the polls to vote on November 8, 2011, ask yourself “Who do I want to trust my family's future with?” If you want to keep the positive things in this county going and want to see even more in our future. This can be a reality if you vote for James D. Anderson, Jr. for your next County Judge Executive.

A little closer to home...

By SARAH BLOOM
Times Lifestyle

It is safe to say that no two humans are exactly alike.

Even identical twins have their differences though the naked eye may not be able to perceive them.

We were all born totally unique.

But the one thing that is universal, the one thing that every human has in common is the fact that we all have a birthday.

Birthdays are celebrated in numerous ways every single day of the year.

Some people like to go large while others choose to let their special day slip by quietly without acknowledgement.

I recently received an unexpected attitude adjustment about my impending birthday.

It did not come through some huge revelation, but rather through a few beautifully spoken words I overheard while folding towels.

When I was a little girl birthdays were a grand occasion.

My mom always made sure my brother and I had great parties with our friends and family.

She was careful to fix our favorite cake and do everything she could to make sure our day was special.

In elementary school I was a member of the birthday club at Captain D's which meant that they would send you a voucher for a free kid's meal on your birthday.

On my special day my mom would always pick me up early from school and take me to that restaurant in Winchester so that she and I could enjoy a quick meal together.

It may not seem like much, but those trips were honestly one of my favorite parts of my birthdays because it made me feel special.

As I grew into the pre-teen and teen years my birthdays remained fun.

There was nothing better than having a slumber party with my best girlfriends.

We would stay up all night dreaming about boys, playing practical jokes, doing our best impersonations of our favorite music groups, and eating until we could eat no more.

Not to mention the impromptu beauty pageants and dance-a-thons.

At that age life was in the palm of our hands, we just didn't know it.

All we knew was that we couldn't wait to grow up.

Man oh man did we ever have it wrong.

One thing that stinks about getting older is the fact that birthdays seem to lose their enchantment.

Once my school days were over and "real life" had begun I really did not give my birthdays much thought.

All of my friends were just like me, we had families of our own with responsibilities and obligations which made it hard for everyone to get together.

Of course my mom still fixed a special dinner for me and made sure that my favorite dessert was front and center, but I began to think that growing older really wasn't much fun.

I hit my all-time birthday low when I officially stepped out of my twenties and into the land of thirty.

I can remember waking up on the morning of my thirtieth birthday, looking in the mirror only to cringe at the stranger looking back at me and slowly realizing that a whole chapter of my life had just passed and I felt like I had only read the first few pages.

At thirty years old I was a wife and mother of four.

But where was "me"?

I began to feel sorry for myself and literally let myself slip into a sort of depression.

I moped about, not wanting anyone to acknowledge my once-a-year reminder that I was now considered a "middle-aged" woman...pathetic, huh?

Eventually I tired of wallowing in my own self-pity and got on with life.

But I was still not sure that birthdays would ever be enjoyable again.

I figured I could just ignore them and convince myself that I was twenty-nine forever which brings me to the present and my small, but powerful dose of reality.

Last week I was folding some towels at the veterinary clinic I have been helping at when I overheard the other ladies discussing birthdays.

It just so happened that we all shared the same birth month, November.

As I folded, I listened to the younger of the two say she was not excited about her birthday this year.

Apparently she was turning twenty-two and considered this growing up.

She wanted to stay twenty-one.

I could not help but wish that I was only turning twenty-two.

Just as I started to ponder how much I missed my twenties the other lady spoke up and what she said completely and permanently changed my whole attitude.

She said that she loves birthdays.

She said that when she married she told her husband that she did not care if he remembered their anniversary, but if he ever forgot her birthday then he was in major trouble.

Birthdays were to be celebrated and enjoyed because some are denied that privilege.

She went on to say that her grandmother always told her that birthdays did not mean that you were getting older they meant you were getting closer to home.

At that I stopped what

I was doing, smiled and thanked the Lord for my thirty-plus years of life.

In her few simple words she had opened my eyes to a truth that had always been as clear as day.

I do not believe in coincidence, but rather in divine intervention and though it may not seem like a huge revelation to some for me it was a powerful wake up call.

The realization hit me that in the past year some of my loved ones had celebrated what would be their last birthdays on this earth.

I felt guilty for choosing to ignore the blessing of another year the Lord had given me and for that I was sorry.

So from now on I am determined my birthdays will be a day of rejoicing.

I am intent on bringing back the joy of my childhood parties, if not in practice in attitude alone.

Instead of telling everyone I am twenty-nine and holding, I will just say I am not older, just a little closer to home.

The holiday season is upon us once more. This is a time for enjoying the company of friends and family, a time for frequent parties and social gatherings and a time when high-fat, high-calorie foods are available. As a result, there are many opportunities for putting on extra pounds. Research shows that the average American gains about 1 to 2 pounds during the holidays. This may not seem like a lot, but the problem is that this weight is kept on and it can accumulate with each passing year. Avoiding the family gathering or office party may not be an option, but some careful thought, planning and making some small changes can go a long way in keeping the weight off during the holiday season. The following suggestions should help you make healthier choices:

Eat Healthy each day

- Start your day with a healthy breakfast that includes whole grains, fruit, dairy foods and protein like eggs, ham or peanut butter. Eating a healthy breakfast is a good way to avoid weight gain.

- Increase fruit and vegetable intake. Include a variety of vegetables, especially dark-green and red and orange vegetables and beans and peas.

- Consume at least half of all grains as whole grains. Increase whole-grain intake by replacing refined grains with whole grains.

- Choose a variety of protein foods, which include seafood, lean meat, and poultry, eggs, beans and peas, soy products and unsalted nuts and seeds. Increase the amount and variety of seafood consumed by choosing seafood in place of some meat and poultry.

- Replace protein foods that are higher in solid fats with choices that are lower in solid fats and calories and/or sources of oils.

Eat healthy at parties

- Try not to arrive at a social function hungry as this can lead to overeating. If you are hungry before a party or gathering, have a small snack. This could be as simple as while grain crackers and cheese, raw vegetables, fruit or low-fat yogurt.

- Do not rush to eat. Spend some time socializing and try not to socialize near the food table. In this way you will avoid unconscious nibbling.

- Decide which food item you will eat, what you will sample, and what you would avoid.

- Practice portion control. Eat slower and use small plates. Place some fruit, vegetables and other healthy foods on your plate.

- Eat slowly and savor each bite.

- Drink water instead of sugar-sweetened beverages.

- Before you go back for seconds wait 10 minutes to see if you really are still hungry.

- Choose one dessert you like best. You can also share a dessert with a friend. You can still enjoy your dessert but have less of it.

- Prepare and bring a healthy dish to the party or social gathering.

Alcohol contains calories so use in moderation-up to one drink per day for women and two drinks per day for men- and only adults of legal drinking age. It is wise to begin with a calorie-free, nonalcoholic beverage to satisfy your thirst before having an alcoholic drink.

Eat healthy and be realistic

Traditions are an important part of the holidays and many involve special meals, food and beverages. The American Dietetic Association suggests that we should be realistic around their holiday season.

- Don't try to lose weight during the holidays-this may be a self-defeating goal.

- Strive to maintain your weight by balancing party eating with other meals.

- Eat small, lower-calorie meals during the day so you can enjoy celebrating foods later without overdoing your total calorie intake.

Have fun around the holidays. Enjoy traditional holiday meals and party foods with family and friends while maintaining a healthy lifestyle too.

ENCOURAGING WORD: THE WAY TO ACCOMPLISHMENT

Howard Coop
Guest Columnist

For weeks, my friend, who was in the fifth grade, and I, who was in the sixth grade, had practiced for participation in the three-legged race for boys at the annual school fair, a big event involving all rural elementary schools in the county. After tightly tying his left leg to my right leg and placing our arms around each other's shoulders, we learned to co-operate

perfectly and move harmoniously in step so we could run fast. We did very well, and our teacher was pleased with our accomplishment.

On that beautiful fall day when the fair was held, there was a big parade from the school to the courthouse and back to the school. Then, competition began, and a variety of contests for students were held. Academic contests were held inside the school, and athletic events were held on the playground back of the school. When the three-legged race for boys was announced, my friend and I were eager and ready. With confidence that came from weeks of practice and much encouragement from our teacher, we confidently approached the starting line and got set for the race.

At the word "Go," we rushed forward rapidly, and we co-operated perfectly. In our hearts, we were confident that, as compensation for a lot of hard work, a prize belonged to us.

But, as we approached the finish line, something unexpected happened that changed everything: Distracted by something, we lost concentration, and co-operation ceased. When he moved one leg, I moved the wrong leg. As a result, we fell just a little short of the finish line, and the coveted prize for which we had worked so hard and so long went to another team. We were deeply disappointed.

That's life, isn't it? The way to success and accomplishment is simple, but it may take some hard work and concentration on our part. At all times, we must move harmoniously in step with others and work co-operatively with them at all times without allowing distractions from any source to break that relationship.

Volunteers needed for Civil War Reenactment

“Civil War Battle Reenactment. Calling for Volunteers.”

“In commemoration of Kentucky’s sesquicentennial Civil War anniversary, the History Society will be holding a battle reenactment. In addition to those who will reenact the battle, we’re looking for volunteers in the following areas: refreshments, greeters, parking attendants, musical entertainment ...

Musical entertainment! I couldn’t wait to call Bark. I knew he’d want The Barkstreet Band to volunteer. And wait until I tell my parents. After supper and chores, I had hours of drumming ahead of me.

“How’s it going, pups?” Mrs. Grant asked, entering our office.

“Unbelievable!” I said, knowing I needed to focus on my job. “Can you believe the two leaders of the Civil War were from Kentucky? It’s one more thing that makes our state awesome!” I barked. We relayed the information about Lincoln and Davis to Mrs. Grant and told her about the Civil War battle reenactment. She complimented us on our work. My heart swelled and my cheeks flushed from the praise. Chloe smiled from ear to ear!

“I’m impressed with the information you’ve gathered for our ‘Brother Against Brother’ room for our library. We have enough material for the ‘Background’ and the ‘Brothers’ section, now focus on the section called ‘Bluegrass.’ This will feature Kentucky’s role in the war. After you eat lunch, spend time researching Kentucky. Were they a southern state or a northern state? Buzz me if you have questions.”

Chloe and I fetched our lunch, gave thanks for our food, and gobbled up the vittles Mom had sent. I wondered what the Civil War soldiers ate. Grabbing a book, I read a few paragraphs to Chloe while we ate.

“The Civil War soldiers ate plain food like rice, onions and other foods that wouldn’t easily spoil. Union soldiers also received a hard cracker-like biscuit called hardtack while Confederate soldiers ate cornmeal. When soldiers were in a real bind they ate rats.”

“Woody, please!” Chloe choked. I was going to correct her for talking with her mouth full when I realized the time. I needed to call Bark and tell him about the Civil War reenactment. I put the book away and made the call.

“Sweet,” Bark replied. “The band will love to hear about a new gig.”

I told Bark goodbye, and Chloe and I rummaged through the books we’d been given. One book, Kentucky: A Border State, immediately caught our eye.

“Kentucky was a border state. They allowed slavery but chose not to become a Confederate State. The state had ties to both the Confederate and the United States (also known as the Union). Both sides wanted control of Kentucky. The Confederacy wanted to control Kentucky so they could have unlimited access to Kentucky’s horses and crops. The Union needed the rivers in Kentucky to move supplies and soldiers. Still, the state remained neutral.

“While the state didn’t pick sides, Kentuckians did. About 90,000 Kentuckians fought for the Union, while 40,000 people fought for the Confederacy.”

“Unbelievable,” we both said after reading the information. “Not only did the phrase ‘brother against brother’ refer to Lincoln and Davis, it applied to the people of Kentucky - families in Kentucky. I couldn’t imagine family members - brothers - being on opposite sides of such an important event. Talk about a divided doghouse,” I said to my sister. Sure, Chloe and I could disagree over silly things, but we loved each other. I couldn’t imagine going to battle against her.

We were giggling about the time we were arguing over whose piece of bacon was the biggest when Mrs. Grant came in.

“Hey, cuties! Tell me what you found out about the Bluegrass?” she asked as she plopped down beside us. We informed her of our findings, and once again she applauded us for our hard work. “You two have a great afternoon, and I’ll see you in the morning.” We told Mrs. Grant goodbye before leaving the library. It was time to head home, complete our chores, eat and drum. First, I couldn’t wait to tell Mom and Dad about playing in the reenactment. Rather than walk, Chloe and I both ran the entire way home.

I barreled through the door and ... stop the presses...there was an open space on the living room floor. I searched every room. Nothing. My paws felt sweaty and my heart raced.

“Chloe, call the police! We’ve been robbed!”
